授業題目	Contemporary Chinese Diplomacy
授業の目的と概要	This class aims to provide an overview of the major issues and main dynamics shaping contemporary Chinese diplomacy. It will cover the history of the foreign policy of the People's Republic of China, its relationship with key states and regions around the world, and the main themes in its contemporary diplomacy, such as the Belt and Road Initiative, its engagement with international organizations, and its efforts to shape the international narrative about China's rise. The class will consist of weekly readings, lecture by the professor, and presentations by students followed by class discussions. Students will be expected to follow international news, to participate actively in class by asking questions and giving comments when called on, and to give one presentation offering their own analysis of the readings and the theme for the week. They will also write a short paper relating to their presentation as well as a longer final paper.
学習の到達目標	By the end of the class, students will be expected to have acquired a basic knowledge of the main themes and features of contemporary Chinese diplomacy and to have developed the necessary tools to analyze and understand the future trajectory of the country. They will also have trained how to present their ideas coherently to the class, how to summarize and present information clearly, and how to write academic papers.
